The Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation consists of 21 countries around the Pacific Rim including the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Chile. Its primary role is to facilitate trade and business transactions among member countries. Academic study centers (ASC) are hosted in the major university of most countries except in the U.S where there are 15 APEC-ASCs including university centers at Cornell, Columbia, Berkeley, Brandeis and Honolulu's East-West Center. University study centers participate in APEC conferences and Asia Pacific Business Council meetings. Centers engage in research on the Asia Pacific which is published on APEC-ASC's website at Monash University (Australia).
